

V-Chain Press Release

San Francisco, CA, - 15 September 2006 – V-Chain Solutions, Inc, announced the signing of its first strategic partnership with DC Lobby Group. Dan Copeland is the founder of DC Lobby Group which will offer lobbying services to V-Chain Solutions. Dan will be serving as two roles, he will serve as the Vice President of Government Affairs for V-Chain Solutions while rendering his services as a lobbyist at our Nation's Capital. Dan will engage key leaders such as senator John Kerry , Former Secretary of State Colin Powell, Senator Bob Dole and other key decision makers throughout the United States Government to lobby for V-Chain Solutions, Inc. Dan's primary goal is to promote the V-Chain Network as the solution to improve warfighter support to the US government and other US allies around the world.

Dan Copeland is a profile of hard work, sacrifice and ambition. Growing up in rural Mississippi with 10 siblings, he left the family pig farm at age 18. He attended North Iowa Area Community College from 1979 to 1981. Both of his years at NIACC, he played football for the Trojans as a defensive back and running back for Coach Jerry Dunbar. In addition to college life on campus, he became quite involved in the community. For example, with encouragement from NIACC Dormitory Board member Willis Haddix, Dan faithfully attended New Bethel Baptist Church of Manly, becoming good friends with many members of the congregation. After graduating from NIACC, Dan received a football scholarship to the University of Arizona, where he majored in speech communication. His athletic abilities eventually took him to Canada to play professional ball. Dan's tenacity and capacity for rising up after being knocked down carried over from the football field to business.

Dan started a trucking company in Tucson, Arizona, in 1984 with just $500. By 1989, his business had grown to more than $250,000 in sales. In 1990, Ernst & Young named him Entrepreneur of the Year. After eight successful years in the freight industry, Dan moved to Atlanta where he earned a bachelor's degree in organizational management from Morris Brown College and established himself as an independent lobbyist. His firm, the DC Lobbying Group, has represented the Hospital Corporation of America, Atlanta Neighborhood Development Partnership, Spelman College, Save the Family Foundation, Johnson Controls, Tyson Foods, Hewlett Packard and IBM, among other clients. Two years ago, Dan founded the National Black Lobbyists Group.

Dan's ultimate ambition is to be Chief of Staff for the President of the United States. Besides politics, Dan enjoys golfing and spending time with his son and two daughters. He advises young people and aspiring entrepreneurs to take risks, make commitments and sacrifices, keep their moral standards, and believe in themselves. "I've lost more than I've won, but I keep the faith," he said. "I love making a difference." V-Chain Solutions would like to welcome Dan and looks forward to working with him to bring the V-Chain vision to our American soldiers and US interest abroad. .
